"Ms. Freda"

This year the 1991 yearbook staff and the senior class dedicate the Phoenix to a beautiful young woman who touched and inspired many of our lives. During her years at Mount Vernon Freda has enlightened our hearts with warm smiles that brightens up even the dreariest days.

Footprints

One night a man had a dream. He dreamed he was walking along the beach with the LORD. Across the sky flashed the scenes from his life. For each scene, he noticed two sets of footprints in the sand; one belonged to him, and the other to the LORD.

When the last scene of his life flashed before him, he looked back at the footprints in the sand. He noticed that many times along the path of his life there was only one set of footprints. He also noticed that it happened at the very lowest and saddest times of his life.

This really bothered him and he questioned the LORD about it. "Lord, you said that once I decided to follow you, you'd walk with me all the way. But I noticed that during the most troublesome times in my life, there is only one set of footprints. I don't understand why when I needed you most you would leave me."

The LORD replied, "My precious, precious child, I love you and I would never leave you. During your times of trial and suffering, when you see only one set of footprints, it was then I carried you."

Freda, we love you.

Introducing Interim President Dr. Madeleine Fisher Green

As a Radcliffe College alumna, Mount Vernon Interim President Madeleine Green knows firsthand the benefits of a women's college education. She earned a B.A. magna cum laude in French Literature at Radcliffe in 1967 before completing an M.A. and Ph.D at Columbia University in the same field.

Her experience at women's colleges also includes teaching French at Simmons College (MA) from 1971 until 1974 and serving on the board of directors at Wilson College (PA) since 1988.

Green comes to Mount Vernon from the American Council on Education (ACE) where she is vice president and director of its Center for Leadership, Development. As vice president, she also heads ACE's active international agenda. The American Council on Education is a private non-profit membership association of 1800 colleges and universities.

Dr. Green is very enthusiastic about coming to Mount Vernon, observing that her work at ACE fits well with the priorities at the College. "Leadership development," she noted, "is about the importance of people in any organization, on any college campus. Leadership is not the responsibility of a few; we need good leaders at every level and in every part of the College. Higher education is incredibly people-intensive; human capital is our most precious resource." A main agenda item for Green after a year of turbulence on campus is to rebuild a sense of trust on campus and to foster collegial decision making processes that promote wide participation and leadership from the ranks. She believes that a strong faculty and a strong board are both desirable and compatible. Even when there is conflict, when there is sufficient trust, these differences can be resolved or simply accepted, Green observed.

Also, her experience in international education will contribute to the efforts underway to internationalize the Mount Vernon experience. She continues to work on a project at ACE that will bring together higher education executives and policy makers from the U.S., Western and Central Europe to explore areas of common interest and define an agenda for future collaboration. At Mount Vernon, she will work with the Global Task Force on creating initiative to globalize the curriculum and provide more international exposure for students.

"This year at Mount Vernon is a formidable challenge," says Green. "There is so much to be done". Green faces coping with a decline in enrollments this year, and an accompanying income shortfall of more than half a million dollars. "Lack of resources make it all the more difficult to innovate and to invest in the programs and facilities that will attract and retain students," she added.

Although there are significant problems facing the campus community, Green has found the faculty and staff eager to look ahead. "The energy level and the enthusiasm is quite high," she noted, "and I am certain that as a community we can face the challenges ahead."

Green leads a hectic and varied life. A prolific writer on higher education issues, she has edited three books: Academic Leaders as Managers (1980) Leaders for a New era: Strategies for Higher Education (1988), and Minorities on Campus: A Handbook for Enhancing Diversity (1989). Her latest book, co-authored with a leadership development specialist from Harvard University Investing in People: A Handbook of Leadership Development will appear this spring. In addition, she is married to Stephen A. Green, a physician and professor at Georgetown University Medical School and has two daughters, Jessica, 13 and Julia, 9.

Dr. Robert Bareikis Interim Vice President for Academic Affairs

In September, Dr. Robert P. Bareikis joined Mount Vernon College as interim vice president for Academic Affairs. Dr. Bareikis is on leave from his position of assistant vice president for academic Affairs at California State university, Long Beach.

Since graduating from Harvard with a Ph.D. in Germanic Languages and Literature, Dr. Bareikis has been active contributor to the academic community as an educator and scholar. Before assuming his position at California, Santa Cruz.

Dr. Bareikis has presented numerous papers and has led several workshops on academic affairs management, academic planning, teaching and Germanic studies. As a faculty member, he taught Germanic and West European Studies at Indiana University and was a visiting professor at University of California, San Diego, University of Pittsburgh, The John Hopkins University and Harvard University.

An active member of California State University community Dr. Bareikis serves on many committees addressing such issues as resource planning, curriculum, retention and international education. He is currently a chair on the Scholar-in-Residence Selection committee at the Council for International Exchange of Scholars. His experience and research in education makes him the ideal person for Mount Vernon during his transitional period.

Dr. Bareikis is looking forward to this year of transition and the challenges facing the college. He has come to Mount Vernon with a fresh and creative perspective. As the interim vice president for academic affairs, he is working to allocate resources in a way that preserves the quality of education for students, and he will do everything possible to attract and retain the highest quality faculty.

His first impression of Mount Vernon College: "It's one of the better kept secrets of D.C. . . . charming, with superb faculty, great student body, and talented, dedicated staff. Mount Vernon is well on her way to becoming a liberal arts college of the highest quality. As an outsider, I am very impressed that in this difficult period, faculty and staff have responded and are willing to work harder to make the College an even better institution.

Disaster

Lightning struck MVC campus on the afternoon of October 18 and a large tree outside Merriweather residence hall.

"First I heard a big boom and then shaking for about a minute," said Heather Gomerly, Merriweather Resident Assistant. "The first I thought of was an earthquake, and then I heard the girls screaming."

About one-half hour after the tree fell there was an evacuation of the residence hall because of a possible gasleak.

All power to the residence hall was turned off while the leak was checked. Merriweather residents were able to spend the night in their rooms, but were not allowed to light candles or smoke cigarettes.

Six rooms were damaged by the falling tree as well as the lounge, which suffered a broken door and windows. The corner of the bookstore roof was damaged and some of the building's drains were knocked off or crushed.

Most of the rooms damaged were occupied at the time of the accident. Glass, tree bark, and leaves were spewed through windows, but no residents were injured. Students spent the evening cleaning up after all campus power returned around 8:15 p.m. The MVC maintenance crew nailed up wood barriers in place of the broken glass while grounds keepers worked to saw off branches.

Effects of the storm were felt on other parts of the campus as well. Due to electrical failure, night classes were cancelled, and many campus events were postponed.

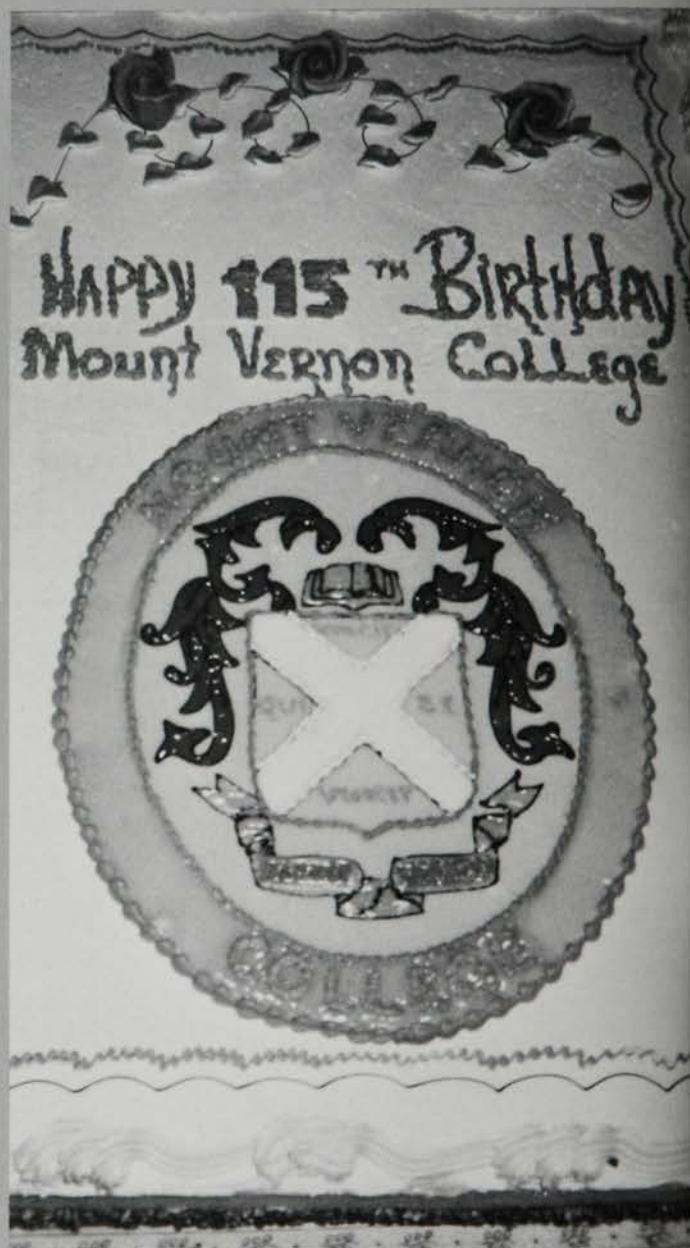

The repair crew blocked the north campus entrance for part of Friday as they removed the tree.

Dana Tonkin and Cindy Tejada discuss last minute details.

Mount Vernon College celebrated Convocation, a ceremony that officially begins the academic year, Thursday, September 13th, in the Florence Hollis Hand Chapel located on the campus. David Brinkley, a 46-year veteran of broadcast news and a winner of 10 Emmy Awards, was the honored guest Speaker.

The event, which was an hour long, recognizes the top scholars of each class from the previous academic year. Dr. Madeleine Fischer Green, interim president of Mount Vernon College, discussed the goals and accomplishments of the college before introducing Mr. Brinkley and presenting awards.

Mr. Brinkley's speech was polished and brief. His anecdotes entertained the crowd and his description of the current world scene stimulated the students. Mr. Brinkley said that the world is now an open market of opportunity, particularly for American women with college degrees. The fall of Communism and the rise of Democracy in many nations have created a demand for international employment that can be supplied by college graduates.

A dinner followed the ceremony in the Ames Dining Hall. Students, faculty, parents and guests attended.

Mount Vernon
College's

1990-91 season

From its modest beginnings in 1982 to its present 35 or more events annually, the "IN" Series Performing Arts Season at Mount Vernon College has endeavored to serve both the artistic/performing community and the audience of the metropolitan area by offering them a genuinely exciting and varied performance option for nine seasons.

They are committed to providing artists with a distinguished performance venue (a "home" where their work is lovingly showcased), while offering the audience programs of high artistic quality, in a relaxed environment and at low prices.

Their wide-ranging programs — from contemporary music, experimental opera, and modern dance to traditional fare — are organized in six different series: Fireside Evenings, Dance in the Chapel, Connoisseur concerts, Basically Baroque, and the free Coffee Concerts which started it all. It has been wonderful to watch the series grow and become critically recognized and acclaimed.

In memory of Mr. Thomas Saltz

If many people were asked where they spent most of their time, their response would probably be, "off campus." However there are other people who do enjoy spending their free time on campus, especially if they are doing something that they love. For Thomas Saltz, Mount Vernon College was the place where he spent his time creating artwork that was loved by the community just as he was.

Mr. Saltz, according to his wife, Julia, "Had multiple interests, which made him good at just about anything that he tried to do." He was a successful businessman who ran a clothing store with his brother, Lewis. Lewis and Thomas Saltz went into business in 1929 and continued until 1955. Originally located on G Street in downtown Washington, it sold men's and women's clothes and was regarded as the finest of its kind in the country.

Mrs. Saltz recalled that every one who worked for her husband, "liked him and trusted him." The way he ran his store was not like a dictatorship, but like a family who works together, she said. While operating his clothing store, Mr. Saltz decided to take art classes at the Corcoran School of Art in his spare time.

After the store closed, Mr. Saltz wrote articles for the Daily News Record, a trade magazine for retailers. His articles ran for about four months, and were then used in a book, Creative Retailing.

In 1964, Mr. and Mrs. Saltz opened the Georgetown University Shop, which they ran until it was sold in 1980. Mrs. Saltz said that the Georgetown students loved her husband and regarded him as a father figure. "Everyone loved him. You just had to love him," she said.

Mr. Saltz retired in 1980 and continued his art studies at MVC with Professor Jim Burford. Last May, he received an honorary degree from MVC, the Doctorate of Humane Letters.

Mrs. Saltz said that she will always remember how her husband touched the lives of everyone that he knew. "He was the kindest man that ever lived and everyone that knew him loved him."

Longtime D.C. resident and MVC art student Thomas Saltz died on Nov. 12 after gall bladder surgery. Mr. Saltz was 95.

Mr. Saltz is survived by his wife Julia; a daughter, Ellen Saltz Kolansky of Alexandria, Va; and two grandchildren.

"He was old in body, but not in mind," said MVC student Karin Neuhauser. "He was willing to help others with their work."
